

MAP KIBERA Education

<http://mapkibera.org>

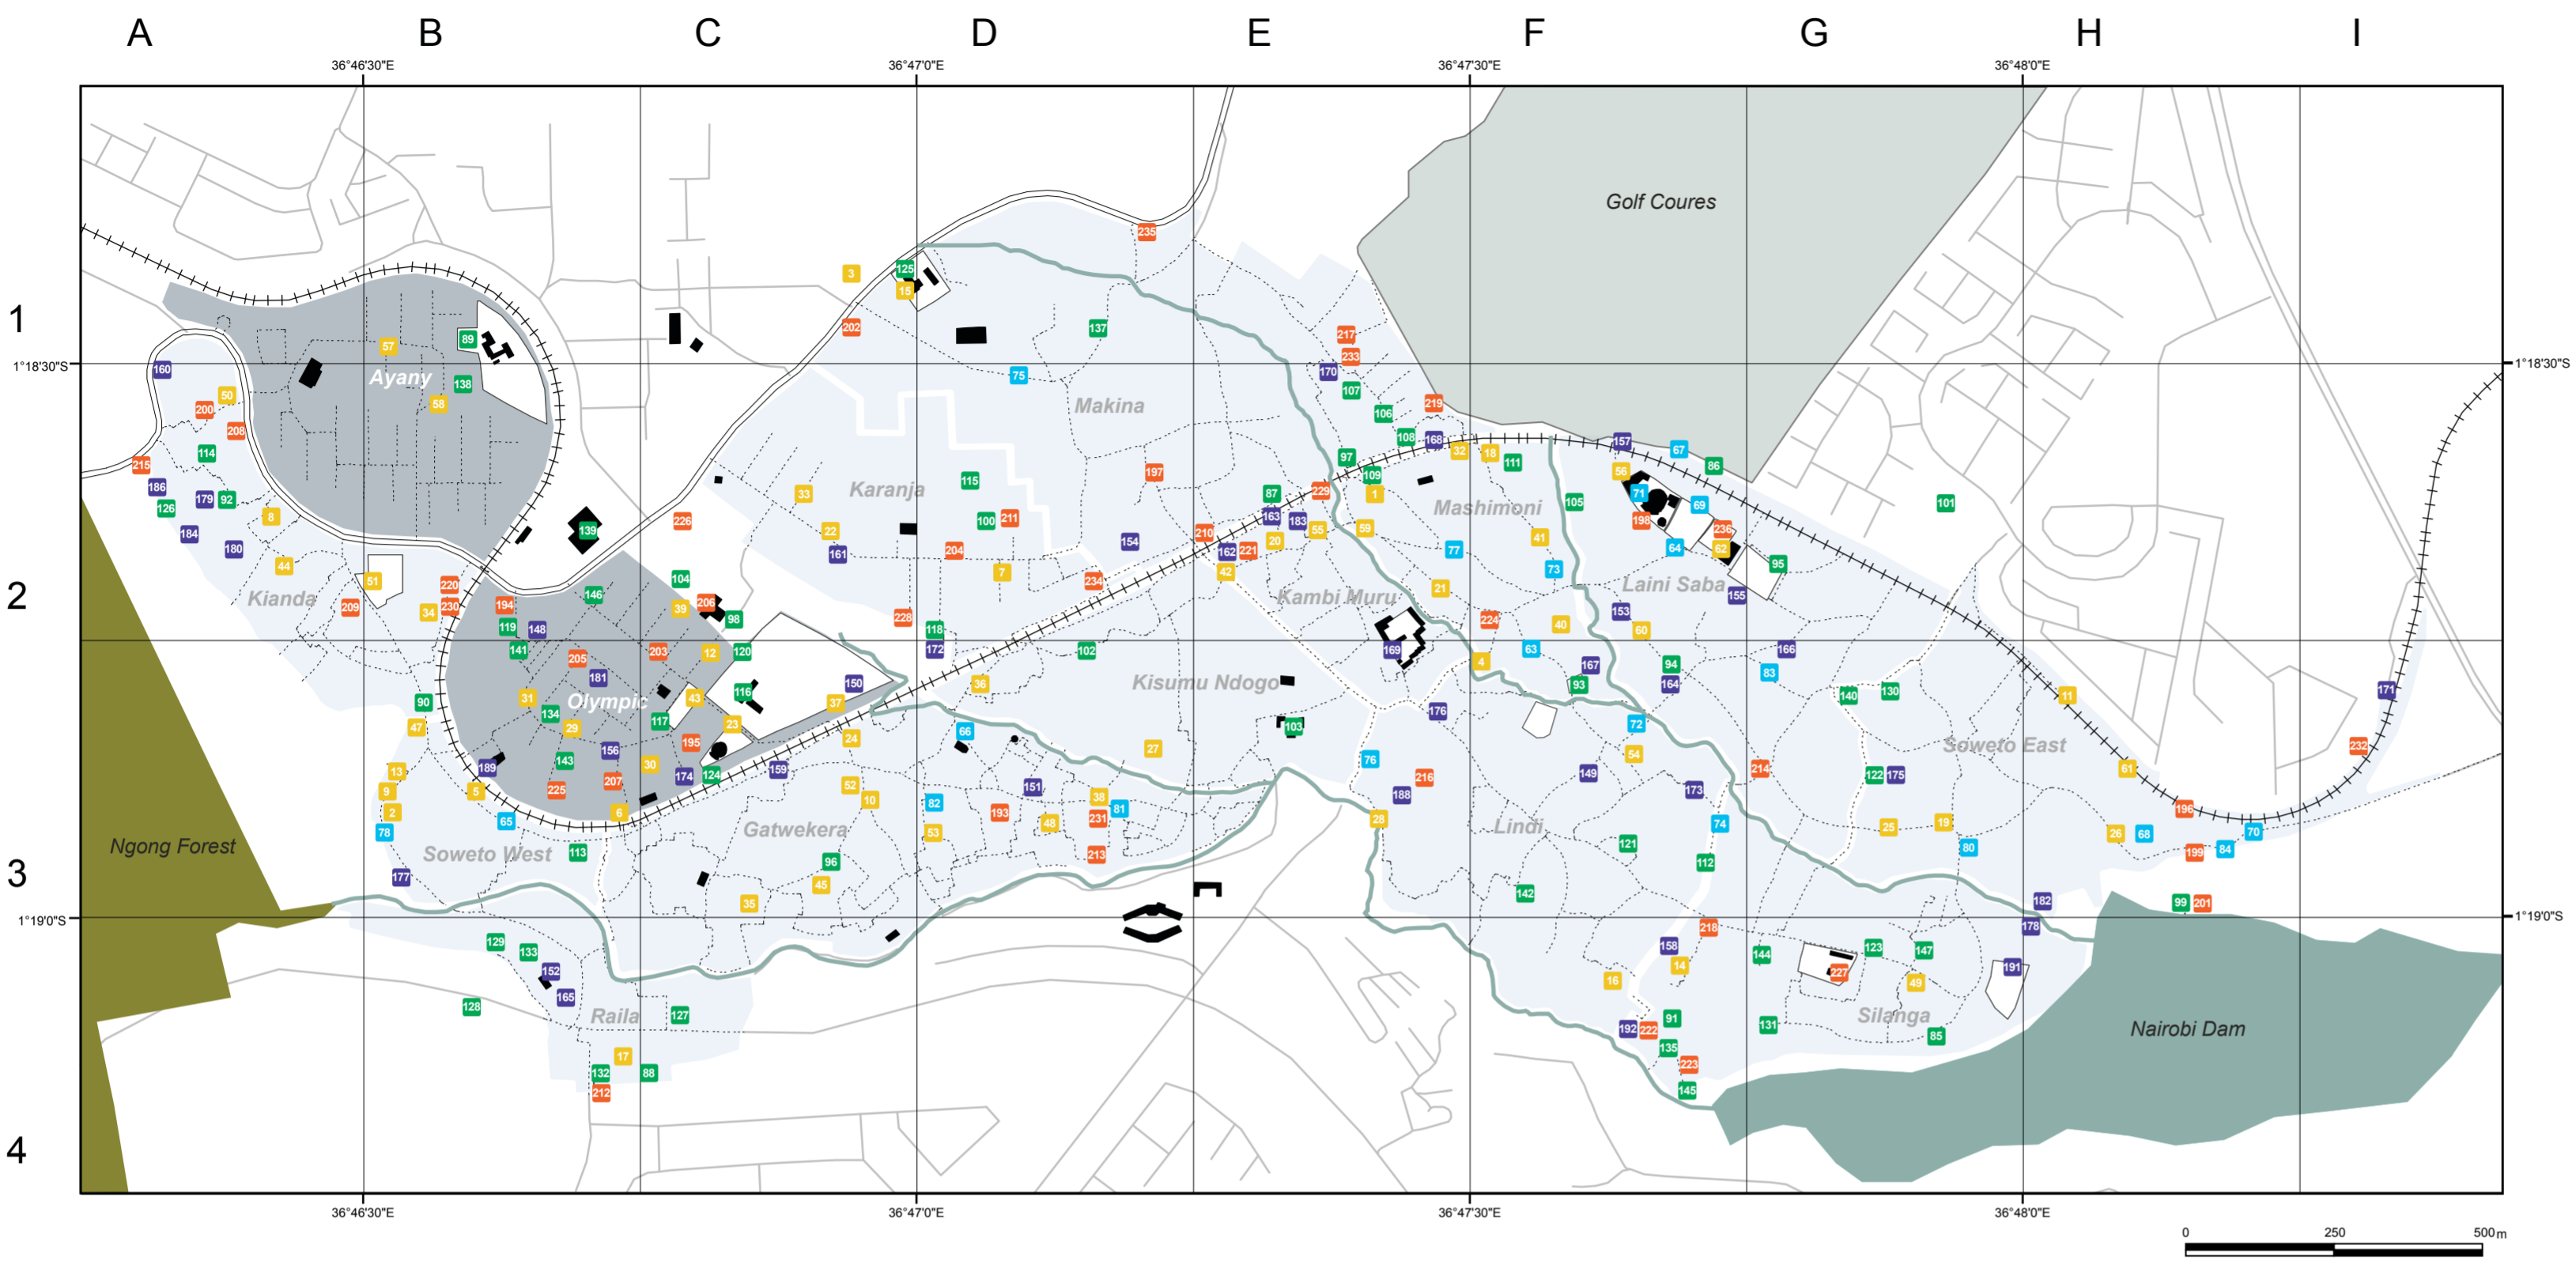

This map is an overlay of information obtained through a four-step process, which involved stakeholder meetings, data collection by 13 Kibera mappers, community consultations (community meetings with large groups of people), and the creation of narrative media.

There are two types of schools in Kibera: formal, which are recognized by the Ministry of Education, and non-formal, which are registered at the Ministry of Gender and Social Services.

The map reveals over 200 non-formal schools which include nurseries, kindergartens, primary, and secondary schools. Non-formal schools usually have fewer students per class than the formal schools. The majority of students in these non-formal schools are boys, and most of the teachers are untrained. Most of the schools are attached to religious institutions and other NGOs and CBOs. Tuition fees range from 300 - 500 shillings per month (the price depends whether or not there is a feeding program at the school). Age at enrollment is less strict than formal schools, and one can join at any age. Usually different classes take place in the same classroom, with one teacher teaching all classes. The schools are more flexible regarding wearing uniforms, often lack text books, and have no space for playgrounds.

There are few formal schools in Kibera, and all of them are densely populated (sometimes there are 80 students per teacher in one classroom). All of the teachers in the formal schools are trained, and sometimes they have intern teachers. Education in these facilities is free, but students still have to pay for admission, food, and labor for special staff (cooks, guards, etc). The government provides text and exercise books. The schools have big open spaces, playgrounds, and extracurricular activities. There are just 2 formal/public secondary schools with fees that vary around 5000 Ksch (60$) per term.

There also two special schools in Kibera for the deaf and the dumb, and a variety of schools offering technical training such as mechanical work, carpentry, hairdressing, tailoring, computer skills, masonry, bible studies, driving, etc.
